Sloane Wilke is a Valentine's Day baby, born with more spunk, warmth, and spice than a handful of cinnamon hearts. Her creative heart loves singing, dancing, acting and playing guitar for family, friends and large audiences. Sloane is fearless regarding her love of the arts, and she's comfortable playing lead roles, ensemble roles and everything in between. She loves being part of a cast, collaborating with others, making friends and growing in her craft. She currently studies acting with industry leading professionals at the LeBlanc school of acting in Vancouver. In school, Sloane is academically strong and attends the district-gifted program for creative writing.
